Truro Creek Trail - 0.4 km

This asphalt trail winds through scenic Bruce Park, a 5 hectare park with great historical value. This land was once owned by the Bruce family, local Métis farmers and there is a rock, near the Portage Avenue entrance, commemorating their contribution to the area.

This park is a showpiece with an ornamental foot bridge and plantings of blue spruce, clump birch and wild roses. Its natural beauty is apparent to all visitors and make it a popular location for Frisbee, catching frogs in the spring or walking the dog.

Points of Interest

- 1 North Assiniboine Parkway Route - A popular cycling and pedestrian corridor which follows the route of the Assiniboine River.
- 2 Truro Creek - This small, but important tributary of the Assiniboine River meanders through Bruce Park bringing with it the melodious sounds of a babbling stream as it moves over riffles. Truro Creek is an important site for fish spawning in the spring.
- 3 Wading pool - During the summer months, this wading pool, run by the City of Winnipeg, is very popular with neighbourhood children.
- 4 Cenotaph - Originally erected in 1936 to pay homage to fallen soldiers of the First World War. After 50 years of harsh Winnipeg winters, the crumbling cenotaph was replaced by a replica in 1990 by the St. James Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion. It now honours veterans of three 20th Century wars.
